

The Paris Climate Deal was a FRAUD!

The UN head of climate change who engineered the Paris Climate Deal, Christiana Figueres has said plainly that their goal is to replace Capitalism and Free Enterprise with Sustainable Development.

Figueres stated in a 2015 press conference,

"This is the first time in the history of mankind that we are setting ourselves the task of intentionally, within a defined period of time to change the economic development model that has been reigning for at least 150 years, since the industrial revolution."

Source

Here's a United Nations climate report that environmentalists probably don't want anybody to read.

It says that even if every country abides by the grand promises they made last year in Paris to reduce greenhouse gases, the planet would still be "doomed."

When President Obama hitched America to the Paris accords in 2016, he declared that it was,

"the moment that we finally decided to save our planet."

And when Trump pulled out of the deal this year, he was berated by legions of environmentalists for killing it.

But it turns out that the Paris accord was little more than a sham that will do nothing to "save the planet."

According to the latest annual UN report on the "emissions gap," the Paris agreement will provide only a third of the cuts in greenhouse gas that environmentalists claim is needed to prevent 'catastrophic' warming.

If every country involved in those accords abides by their pledges between now and 2030 - which is a dubious proposition - temperatures will still rise by 3 degrees C by 2100.

The goal of the Paris agreement was to keep the global temperature increase to under 2 degrees.

Eric Solheim, head of the U.N. Environment Program, which produces the annual report, said this week that,

"One year after the Paris Agreement entered into force, we still find ourselves in a situation where we are not doing nearly enough to save hundreds of millions of people from a miserable future.

Governments, the private sector and civil society must bridge this catastrophic climate gap."

The report says unless global greenhouse gas emissions peak before 2020, the CO<sup>2</sup> levels will be way above the goal set for 2030, which, it goes on, will make it,

"extremely unlikely that the goal of holding global warming to well below 2 degrees C can still be reached."

Not to worry. The UN claims that closing this gap will be easy enough, if nations set their collective minds to it.

But this is a fantasy...

The list of what would need to be done by 2020 - a little over two years from now - includes:

- Boosting renewable energy's share to 30%
- Pushing electric cars to 15% of new car sales, up from less than 1% today
- Doubling mass transit use
- Cutting air travel CO<sup>2</sup> emissions by 20%
- Coming up with $1 trillion for "climate action"
- Oh..., and coal-fired power plants would have to be phased out worldwide, starting now

According to the report,

"phasing out coal consumption... is an indispensable condition for achieving international climate change targets."

That means putting a halt to any new coal plants while starting to phase out the ones currently in use.

Good luck with that. There are currently 273 gigawatts of coal capacity under construction around the world, and another 570 gigawatts in the pipeline, the UN says.

That would represent a 42% increase in global energy production from coal.

Does anyone really think developing countries who need coal as a cheap source of fuel to grow their economies will suddenly call it quits?

So, does this mean the planet is doomed?

Hardly...

As we have noted in this space many times, all those forecasts of global catastrophe are based on computer models that have been unreliable predictors of warming. And all of the horror stories assume the worst.

What the report does make clear, however, is that all the posturing by government leaders in Paris was just that. Posturing...

None of these countries intended to take the drastic and economically catastrophic steps environmentalist claim are needed to prevent a climate change doomsday.

As such, Trump was right to stop pretending.

Whether you believe in climate change or not, the Paris climate accord amounted to nothing, or pretty close to it.

Even the UN (United Nations) admits that now...

References

- No, Michael Mann, Global Warming didn't Cause Hurricane Harvey's Devastation
- By Leaving Paris Climate-Change Deal, Trump will do U.S. Economy a 'Yuuuge' Favor
- The Paris Climate Deal was a 'Fraud' and a 'Sham'... Until Trump Decided to Ditch It